ILMEG Products AB, the well-known manufacturer of dust control systems for the rock excavation industry, now launches a completely new dust collector series, the X-series

The new dust collector offers added value to all customers with regards to improved capacity in combination with reduced energy consumption. The concept includes a completely new filter design and a new filter cleaning system. With the new filter design, ILMEG has improved the serviceability and the shape of the dust collector unit. The company has invested heavily in R&D in their core component, the suction fan. The result is a new concept that improves the efficiency and reduces the noise levels.

"Product development that adds value to our customers, is the key to our future success" says Magnus Eriksson, President ILMEG Products AB. "Innovations, representing quantum leaps when it comes to technical solutions, in combination with improvements on existing technologies form the base for our product development strategies. We are now proud to introduce the new X-series including a number of new features built in, adding value to our customers" Magnus continues

The owners of ILMEG have decided to build a completely new factory in order to produce the X-series dust collectors with improved productivity in an environmentally friendly way. This new production facility will be inaugurated beginning of May this year.

"Being innovative when it comes to product development and production techniques are our main strategies" says Marie-Louise Eriksson, Vice President ILMEG Products AB. "We are now both introducing a completely new range of dust collectors and at the same time building the new factory. This shows our innovative spirit and long term commitment to the industry" Marie-Louise concludes
